If you are a student with a strong interest in the visual arts, SoVA's High School Summer Art Camp is for you!

"This is a great program for students interested in a career in the arts," said Dr. Natalia Pilato, SoVA alumna and camp coordinator. The camp, Portfolio Thinking, will take place June 25 - 30, at the University Park campus. Open to students entering grades 9 through 12 (and just-graduated seniors), the camp will provide an intensive residential studio workshop program across various art media.

SoVA recognizes that not all students with an interest in attending the camp can afford to participate. To help address this we are offering a small number of partial and full-tuition scholarships.

The camp's theme, Portfolio Thinking, underscores the goal of the program, which is to help students learn how to develop their innate creativity and visual thinking skills in planning and making artwork. Participants will produce portfolio-quality work in a university environment.

Campers will immerse themselves in life as a Penn State School of Visual Arts student, participating in film nights and social activities within the school and throughout the campus.

The camp schedule will include workshops focused on a range of studio areas, taught by experienced faculty and graduate M.F.A. instructors. They will take place in SoVA's art and digital studios.

Each year the Edwin W. Zoller Gallery, SoVA's professional gallery space, is transformed into the camp's central hub, serving as the studio space where students display and critique their work produced while at the camp. On the final day of camp, SoVA hosts a closing exhibition reception for campers and their families.

For complete information about the camp, visit: <https://sova.psu.edu/summer/about>.

College Applications

What is early action? Early action is the early admission program in which applying early will get you an early answer. This program usually asks students to apply by November 1 and the college responds with a decision by mid-December. However, you are not required to make your decision until the regular May reply date, giving you time to compare financial aid packages between colleges. Early action is non-binding, which means you do not have to attend the college if you are accepted. The advantage of the early action program is that you find out whether you are accepted sooner rather than later, giving you time to enjoy the last few months of your senior year without having to worry about being accepted into college.

What is early decision? Early decision is similar to early action in that you can apply early (usually by November 1) and get an early answer from your college about acceptance (usually around mid-December). However, with early decision, there is a catch. Early decision plans are binding. This means that if you apply to a college via the early decision process, you must attend that college if accepted and offered an adequate financial aid package. Thus, you can only apply to one early decision school. You can, however, apply to other colleges under regular admission. If you are accepted by your early decision college, then you must withdraw all other applications. Keep in mind that early decision may not be your best option if you want to compare financial aid packages between colleges. Early decision colleges usually offer students a better chance of admission if they apply early. When you research schools with the early decision option, check out the acceptance rates for students who apply early decision versus regular admission. The early decision acceptance rates are usually higher.

Have you heard of 4 or more?

Have you heard about 4 or More™? It's a College Board initiative designed to inspire, assist, and reward you as you encourage all students to apply to at least four colleges.

Over 5,000 of your counseling colleagues nationwide have already joined the movement and are benefiting from the tools and resources they've received.

Why should students apply to four or more colleges?

Studies show that students who apply to two colleges, rather than just one, are 40 percent more likely to enroll in college, and applying to four colleges increases the likelihood that the college they choose will be a good fit for them — academically, socially, and financially.
